Information on the left half of each page:

- Segment names (or connecting routes), mileage of segment or connecting route and corresponding Ice Age Trail Atlas map and Guidebook pages
- Trail access information for each segment
- Notes with warnings, cautions and other information
- Route points and descriptions
- Progressive mileage from western and eastern termini
- Turning directions for connecting routes

Information on the right half of each page:

- Trail access directions and parking information
- Information on a wide variety of area services along or near the Trail
- Navigational notes and additional cautions and warnings

Each section starts with the name of the county or counties, corresponding Atlas maps and Guidebook pages and total miles broken down into Trail miles and Connecting Route miles.

Fold here

Zillmer County

Atlas maps 106f–112f; Guidebook pages 374–378
Total miles: 22.7 (Trail 15.9; Connecting Route 6.8)

Notes usually contain information about hunting, water availability or dog restrictions.

Roads the IAT crosses are named. The word "crossing" is not used.

Parentheses indicate an alternative name for a road.

Within a segment, join and depart are used when the Trail starts sharing a road and then leaves the road. Directions (N, E, S, W and ↑, ← and →) are given if necessary for clarity. If the shared use is less than 0.2 mi, it is written like this: [join for 200 ft].

Areas of caution are noted on the left side of the page; a double arrow (➤➤) means more information is on the right half of the page.

Brackets and italics denote clarifying explanations.

A slash between two road names indicates an intersection where you will turn. Directions to the next intersection (N, E, S, W and ↑, ← and →) may be provided.

Towns near the Trail are bold; their services are found on the right half of the page.

Right half notations:

GPS coordinates indicate the location of a Trail Access point. Enter them into your phone's map app for driving directions.

The Trail Access directions include both the directions to the trailhead and parking information.

Caution and Navigation notes that correspond with notations on the left half are in italics, as are notes about significant area services information.

Towns with zip code notations have a post office.

If no parking is available at the Trail Access, information is provided for nearby parking.

A symbol key is provided below.
